Mainstreaming Gender, Democratizing the State Shirin Rai, 2017-07-12 Mainstreaming Gender Democratizing the State reflects the commitment of the United Nations to promote mechanisms that aim to achieve equality between women and men. It identifies institutional mechanisms for the advancement of women including national machineries as one of twelve critical areas of concern. National machineries are the primary institutional mechanism entrusted with the implementation of the strategic objectives contained in the goals for equity set by the United Nations. The mandate of these national institutions has evolved from promoting women specific projects to ensuring that equality concerns are integrated into all government legislation policy programs and budgetary processes. National machineries face serious constraints in fulfilling their mandate including inadequate financial and human resources, relatively powerless locations within government structures and insufficient linkage with civil societies. This volume illustrates that the ability of UN member states to subscribe to the agenda of equality between women and men has been significantly enhanced by the creation of these national level institutions. National machineries for the advancement of women were initially conceived at the World Conference on the International Women's Year held in Mexico City in 1975 and since then have been considered systematically by world conferences on women in Copenhagen 1980, Nairobi 1985 and Beijing 1995 as well as the sessions of the Commission on the Status of Women. The twenty third special session of the General Assembly in Beijing reiterated the significant role that national machineries play in promoting equality between women and men, gender mainstreaming and monitoring of the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action as well as the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women. There has been a long standing need for a volume to bring together discussions on theory and practice as well as comparative analysis and in depth case studies of national machineries; this book responds to that need. The Common Weal Herbert Albert Laurens Fisher, 1924 Mainstreaming Gender, Democratizing the State? Shirin Rai, 2007 Mainstreaming Gender Democratizing the State reflects the commitment of the United Nations to promote mechanisms that aim to achieve equality between women and men. Shirin Rai, 2003

Democratization has become an important concept in the last ten years. With the end of the Cold War the spread of globalization and the extension of economic regulatory regimes democratization has come to be seen as important to securing long term political stability. Much has been written about democratization and gender in works on human rights citizenship women's movements and challenges to authoritarian regimes. This book published in association with the United Nations builds on this existing body of literature by looking at the relevance of national machineries for the advancement of women. Appropriate mechanisms through which the mainstreaming of gender can take place are considered and the levels of governance involved the relationship between gender mainstreaming and state structures and the effect of this relationship on issues of decentralization accountability consultation and participation. It defines what the interests of women are and how and by what processes these interests are represented to the state policy making structures. Global strategies for the advancement of women and how far these have penetrated at national level are considered. This is illuminated by a series of case studies gender equality in Sweden and other Nordic countries the Ugandan ministry of Gender Culture and Social services gender awareness in Central and Eastern Europe and further examples from South Korea the Lebanon Beijing and Australia. This book will be of vital use to students of democratization gender studies and politics and is the first full length appraisal of global strategies and national machineries for the advancement of women The Oxford Handbook of Gender and Politics Georgina Waylen, 2013-04-04

The Oxford Handbook of Gender and Politics brings to political science an accessible and comprehensive overview of the key contributions of gender scholars to the study of politics and it shows how these contributions produce a richer understanding of politics and societies The Oxford Handbook of Gender and Conflict Fionnuala Ní Aoláin, Naomi Cahn, Dina Francesca Haynes, Nahla Valji, 2017-12-15

In The Oxford Handbook of Gender and Conflict Fionnuala Ní Aoláin, Naomi Cahn, Dina Francesca Haynes and Nahla Valji focus on the multidimensionality of gender in conflict yet they also prioritize the experience of women given both the changing nature of war and the historical de emphasis on women's experiences Gender, Development, and the State in India Carole Spary, 2019-02-21

This book explores the relationship between the state development policy and gender in equality in India. It discusses the formation of state policy on gender and development in India in the post 1990 period through three key organising concepts of institutions discourse and agency The book pays particular attention to whether the international policy language of gender mainstreaming has been adopted by the Indian state and if so to what extent and with what results The author examines how these issues play out at multiple levels of governance at both the national and the subnational state level in federal India This comparative aspect is particularly important in the context of increasing autonomy in development policymaking in India in the 1990s divergent development policy approaches and outcomes among states and the emerging importance of subnational state development policies and programmes for women in this period The author argues that the state is not a monolith but a heterogeneous internally differentiated collection of institutions which offers complex and varying opportunities and consequences for feminists engaging the state Demonstrating that the Indian empirical case is illuminating for studies of the gendered politics of development and international debates on gender mainstreaming the book highlights the politics of negotiating gender equality strategies in the contemporary context of neo liberal development and brings together complex issues of modernity postcolonialism identity politics federalism and equality within the broader context of the world s largest democracy This book will be of interest to scholars interested in the politics of gender equality state feminism and gender mainstreaming federalism and multi level governance and development studies and gender in South Asia Handbook of Feminist Governance Marian Sawer, Lee A. Gender, Governance and Empowerment in India Sreevidya Kalaramadam, 2016-03-22 Since the mid 1980s the presence of women in governance has become a major marker of successful democracy in global and national discourses on the democratization of society A diverse set of nation states have legislatively mandated gender quotas to ensure the presence of elected women representatives EWRs in various rungs of governance Since 1993 the Indian state has legislated a massive program of democratization and decentralization As a result more than 1.5 million EWRs have taken office within the lower rungs of governance or the Panchayati Raj Institutions PRI This book is an ethnography of the Indian state and its policy of legislated entry of women into political life It argues that political participation of women is necessary to change the political practices in society to make institutions more gender class and caste representative and to empower individual women to negotiate both formal and informal institutions Its locus is the everyday life contexts of EWRs in the southern Indian state of Karnataka who negotiate their own meanings of politics state society empowerment and political subjectivity Analysing three factors structural boundaries sociocultural divisions and conjunctural limitations imposed on the participation of EWRs by political parties the book demonstrates that the social embeddedness of PRIs within everyday practices and social relations of identity and power severely constrain and shape the political participation and empowerment of EWRs Providing a valuable insight into contemporary state and feminist praxis in India this book will be of interest to scholars of grass roots democracy gender studies and Asian politics

The Gender Politics of Development Shirin M. Rai, 2013-07-04 In The Gender Politics of Development Shirin Rai provides a comprehensive assessment of how gender politics has emerged and developed in post colonial states In chapters on key issues of nationalism and nation building the third wave of democratization and globalization and governance Rai argues that the gendered way in which nationalist statebuilding occurred created deep fissures and pressures for development She goes on to show how women have engaged with institutions of governance in developing countries looking in particular at political participation deliberative democracy representation leadership and state feminism Through this engagement Rai claims vital new political spaces have been created Though Rai focuses in depth on how these debates have played out in India the book's argument is highly relevant for politics across the developing world This is a unique and compelling synthesis of gender politics with ideas about development from an authoritative figure in the field

Gender and Politics Jane H. Bayes, 2012-07-10 This timely collection offers a fresh look on the impact of gender perspectives in the discipline of political science at the beginning of the 21st century Jane Bayes combats the Eurocentric focus that has characterised both fields and suggests viable alternatives for the future of the disciplines

Actors, Institutions, and the Making of EU Gender Equality Programs Petra Ahrens, 2017-11-08 This book is an actor centred sociological study of the EU level processes that produce gender equality policy Based on interviews and documentary analysis the study unpacks the process of the Roadmap for Equality between Women and Men 2006 2010 to explain the different roles of actors in the making of EU gender equality policies By analysing policy processes inside institutions and among institutions the study focuses on the internal working logics in and between EU level institutions It highlights the shifting spaces openings and constraints for the development of gender equality policies Concentrating on EU policy programmes helps shed light on the invisible aspects of EU gender equality policy making and how this process changed regarding actors structure and content in the late 2000s This book will be of interest to students and scholars in the fields of EU politics gender politics and public policy as well as to institutional and non governmental actors in the area of gender politics in Europe and the working of EU politics
