Before you begin

Observe the following precautions when replacing a controller.

⚠ CAUTION:

HP recommends that you perform the replacement procedure within seven minutes from when the controller is removed to when it is replaced in the enclosure. Ensure all necessary parts are available so the procedure can be completed without interruption. Removing a controller module significantly changes the air flow within the enclosure. Both controllers must be installed for the enclosure to cool properly. If a controller fails, leave it in place in the enclosure until a new module is available to install. The enclosure could shut down due to overheating unless the controller is replaced within the recommended seven minutes.

Parts can be damaged by electrostatic discharge. Use proper anti-static protection. Refer to the documentation that shipped with your system for additional information.
