

Just Once

Based on the short story by Thomas J. Dyard

Notes

Everybody liked the Moose. To his parents he was Bryan. At Bedford City High he was the Moose. He was large and strong. And he was fast on his feet for his size. He had a quick and easy smile. "Sweet," some of the teachers called it. "Nice," others said.

But on the football field, he was neither sweet nor nice. He was just the Bears' strong, fast left tackle. When the Moose blocked somebody, he stayed blocked. When the Moose opened a hole in the line, the hole looked like an open garage door.

The Moose had been on the all-conference team twice. His last year, he was a sure bet¹ for all-state. Many colleges wanted him as a football player. But the Moose had a hang-up.

The Moose wanted to carry the ball.

Now, he was not the first player in the line to dream of running for a touchdown. Of hearing fans scream his name.

But most players in the line know they play best there. Football is, after all, a team sport. Everyone plays where he most helps the team. And so most players from the line forget about those dreams.

Not the Moose.

In the sixth game, the Bears were behind 21–17. They had the ball on Mitchell High's five-yard line. It was fourth down,² with time running out. In that case, the best back carries the ball behind the best blocker. That meant Jerry

1. sure bet: certain to be.

2. fourth down: In football, the team holding the ball is allowed four downs, or chances to carry the ball forward at least ten yards.
