Due to design modification, data given in this instruction book are subject to possible change without notice.

PRECAUTIONS

- Picture may not appear correctly if white-spot correction is performed incorrectly. Follow the steps listed in the instructions. (Reference: White-spot correction → 6) Do not perform this operation when there are no white spots.
- If the AGC switch is turned on, the sensitivity increases automatically in dark places. It is not a failure when the image looks grainy.
- If the D/R switch is turned on, the mode changes automatically to black and white in dark places. As the sensitivity increases, the image may look grainy and white spots may appear. When changing modes, bright portions of image may be emphasized but this is not a failure of the camera.
- If a zoom lens is used, check the back focus before mounting the camera. This also applies to lens AGC and LEVEL. (See the instructions on lenses for details.)
- If a high-intensity object (such as a lamp) is shot, the image on the screen may have vertical lines (vertical) or blur (blurring) at its periphery (especially in AES mode). This is a characteristic of the camera.
- If an EE lens is used, set the automatic electronic shutter switch (AES) to OFF. If set to ON, flickering may occur. If a manual iris lens is used, set the AES to ON.
- When using a lens, set the focus correctly. If the focus is not correct, the image on the screen is characteristic of the CCD and not a failure of the camera.
- The automatic tracking system may not function properly when shooting with non-standard lighting or lighting with a color temperature which exceeds the capability of the camera. In such a case, set to the "MANUAL" position.
- If the camera is used in a dark place, the auto-white circuit will normally attempt to change this color to white. In the case of this camera, if it cannot make a correct prediction, the previous white balance setting will be maintained until the subject colors become more varied. Do not use the camera in places where the colors may be incorrect. The camera is used near a radio or television transmitting antenna, in places where strong electromagnetic waves are generated by transformers, motors, etc., or near devices emitting radio waves, such as transmitters or cellular phones.

MOUNTING A LENS

- Before mounting a lens, check whether it is a C-mount or CS-mount lens.
  - If a C-mount lens is used, loosen the back-focus locking screw (M 2.6) using a Phillips head screwdriver. Turn the back-focus adjusting ring with your fingers or the screwdriver and change the mounting method.
- When using a lens, set the focus correctly. If the focus is not correct, the image on the screen is characteristic of the CCD and not a failure of the camera.

Lens	Flange back (B)	Dimension (B)

- The lens has an auto-iris mechanism. Connect the lens cable after checking the pin arrangement.
