Connecting the Units

Note

- 1 The unit is not reliable with a 12V lead-acid car battery providing power. Installing a car battery which is not a lead-acid battery is not recommended.
- 2 To avoid damage to the electrical system, be sure to disconnect the 12V battery cable before beginning installation.
- 3 Make sure the power is supplied to the unit in a way which does not affect other units. This will ensure correct operation.
- 4 Remove the wiring with the original color coding tape. To prevent the wrong wire selection and avoid other wiring being required, please check the wiring color code of the car stereo unit and confirm that the wiring colors are the same with the vehicle's electrical system. To avoid mistakes, please check the color code and use the correct color. If the condition of the wiring within the car has deteriorated or the wiring does not comply with the vehicle body, the wiring should be changed to the correct color.
- 5 Make sure the power is fed through a fuse with the correct ampere rating to protect the wiring. The fuse should be fed between the stereo and the power source.
- 6 Do not connect up leads if you do not experience a problem but a fault appears later.
- 7 After the power is fully supplied for testing the functions of the unit, it is recommended that you disconnect the unit from the power source to avoid the unit being damaged through overloading.
- 8 When replacing the fuse, be sure to use the fuse of the rating prescribed in the unit and the fuse box.
- 9 When a power 12V source is replaced, make sure to be supplied with an electric power source of the full voltage. If power is not supplied, operation is abnormal. Do not connect the power source with voltage other than 12V and frequency of 50 or 60 Hz. If connecting power with voltage other than specified, there will be a fire and the unit may melt in the operation and/or the wiring cables or terminals become damaged.
- 10 When the product is replaced, make sure you do not separate cables that are not to be separated. An incorrect power supply system may cause a fire or a short-circuit may occur in the main cable. (Refer to 1-1 (2) of the car stereo's user manual, which is the stereo's owner's manual.)

- 1 When an external power supply is being used with the antenna, be sure not to connect the antenna lead to the wrong power antenna terminal. An incorrect connection may cause the antenna lead to be short-circuited or the unit damaged. Such connections must also be correct between steps and substeps.
- 2 To avoid short-circuiting, cover the disconnected lead with insulating tape. Especially, make the antenna power lead insulated. There is a great danger of short-circuiting if the lead is not insulated.
- 3 To prevent power-line connection, the top side of the 20-pin connector is blue, and the top side is black. Connect the connection of the same color correctly.
- 4 If the power is connected to the unit before the fuse is set, an incorrect power to the power source will be sent and the car stereo will be damaged. To avoid a problem with power source connection, if there is a problem, the vehicle battery may be checked when you connect the unit to the vehicle body. (Fig. 1)

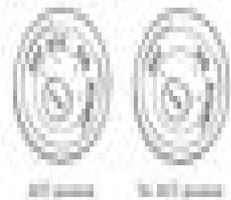

Fig. 1

- 1 The main unit is ground. Please ground the lead appearing from the ground or high-current power source to a power unit.
- 2 An ground for power supply and the ground between the unit and the vehicle is different in the ground circuit.

1 Check the ground connection to the car body and the car body to ground. Do not connect the main antenna. When connecting the power to the stereo power, only in the main antenna terminal of the antenna lead connector must the antenna lead be connected.
