Others, not surprisingly, clearly argue for that same long-term view (2,44) instead of opportunistic, short-termism. These long-termists were to also contribute to the 1980s and 1990s movements.

There are three reasons to support this claim. First, the fact that the system is not a simple linear system, but a complex system, makes it difficult to model. Second, the fact that the system is not a simple linear system, but a complex system, makes it difficult to model. Third, the fact that the system is not a simple linear system, but a complex system, makes it difficult to model.
