Undergraduate Mathematics for the Life Sciences Glenn Ledder, Jenna P. Carpenter, Timothy D. Comar, 2013 There is a gap between the extensive mathematics background that is beneficial to biologists and the minimal mathematics background biology students acquire in their courses The result is an undergraduate education in biology with very little quantitative content New mathematics courses must be devised with the needs of biology students in mind In this volume authors from a variety of institutions address some of the problems involved in reforming mathematics curricula for biology students The problems are sorted into three themes Models Processes and Directions It is difficult for mathematicians to generate curriculum ideas for the training of biologists so a number of the curriculum models that have been introduced at various institutions comprise the Models section Processes deals with taking that great course and making sure it is institutionalized in both the biology department as a requirement and in the mathematics department as a course that will live on even if the creator of the course is no longer on the faculty

Directions looks to the future with each paper laying out a case for pedagogical developments that the authors would like to see

A Year in the Life of a Third Space Urban Teacher Residency Monica Taylor, Emily J. Klein, 2015-12-01 This book weaves together voices of faculty residents mentors administrators community organizers and students who have lived together in a third space urban teacher residency program in Newark as they reinvent math and science teaching and teacher education through the lens of inquiry Each chapter includes narratives from multiple perspectives as well as tools we have used within the program to support and build change providing readers with both real cases of how an urban teacher residency can impact school systems and concrete tools and examples to help the reader understand and replicate aspects of the process Capturing both the successes but also the tensions and challenges we offer a kaleidoscopic view of the rich complex and multi layered ways in which multiple stakeholders work together to make enduring educational change in urban schools Our third space NMUTR has been a fragile utopian enterprise one that has relied on a shared commitment of all involved and a deep sense of hope that working collaboratively has the potential even if not perfect to make a difference

Barry Cooper,Mariya I. Soskova,2017-05-05 This book questions the relevance of computation to the physical universe Our theories deliver computational descriptions but the gaps and discontinuities in our grasp suggest a need for continued discourse between researchers from different disciplines and this book is unique in its focus on the mathematical theory of incomputability and its relevance for the real world The core of the book consists of thirteen chapters in five parts on extended models of computation the search for natural examples of uncomputable objects mind matter and computation the nature of information complexity and randomness and the mathematics of emergence and morphogenesis This book will be of interest to researchers in the areas of theoretical computer science mathematical logic and philosophy
