This book shows how teachers can provide the type of differentiated instruction that struggling readers need by drawing on students' individual and cultural backgrounds as well as the results of classroom-based diagnostic and progress monitoring assessment measures. The authors include authentic examples and case studies from diverse primary and intermediate middle school classrooms to show how instruction can be implemented and adjusted to accommodate students' individual differences, differences that are influenced by their schools and instructional backgrounds, their cultural and linguistic histories, their interests and activities, their reading and writing habits in and out of school, and their understandings and misunderstandings about texts, print and digital media. Classroom teachers, reading specialists, reading coaches, and prospective teachers are invited to analyze and reflect about each case presented to help them provide the type of instruction that will change the trajectory for students who continue to fail in reading.
