More than 100,000 people are expected to attend the 2007 National Conference on the Environment, which will be held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in New Orleans, Louisiana, from September 10-12, 2007. The conference is organized by the National Association of Environmental Professionals (NAEP), a non-profit organization that has been working to improve the environmental performance of the construction industry since 1982. The conference will feature a variety of sessions, including keynote addresses, panel discussions, and workshops. The keynote addresses will be given by industry leaders, including the President of the United States, Vice President, and Secretary of the Department of the Interior. The panel discussions will focus on a variety of topics, including climate change, sustainable development, and the role of the construction industry in addressing these issues. The workshops will provide an opportunity for participants to learn from experts in the field and to share their own experiences. The conference is expected to be a valuable opportunity for professionals in the construction industry to learn about the latest developments in environmental performance and to network with their peers.
