

Install base and high cabinets

Now it's time for the base and high cabinets. Before you begin, locate all plumbing, power sources and other utilities. Mark around these and using a key-hole saw, cut the appropriate openings before you install the cabinets.

In the following steps, you'll install the legs at the front of the cabinets and secure a cabinet wall strip to the wall. The wall strip is made of particleboard and comes packed together with the toekicks. If you prefer, instead of the wall strip for support, you can put legs on the back of the cabinets.

Hang this poster on the wall so you'll have your hands free!

1. Marking the level lines

Using the high point of the floor that you marked earlier, measure up 4-5/16". Use a 4 foot level to draw a line on the wall at this height. Now measure 34-1/2" from the same point on the floor and draw another level line. This will help you level the top of the base cabinets.

2. Cut base cabinet wall strips

Measure the length of the base and high cabinets to be installed. Do not include the wall space behind appliances. Cut the wall strips into corresponding lengths. Cut the strip 3-5/32" shorter where a side toekick is planned.

3. Secure the wall strip

Align the top edge of the wall strip with the level line you marked at 4-5/16" in point 1, Step 4. Secure it to the wall studs. Should the end of the wall strip fall between studs, secure it to the wall with a mooring screw or expansion bolt.

4. Start with the corner cabinet

Attach legs to the front edges of the cabinets according to the assembly instructions. If you are not using the wall strip as support, attach back legs as well. Always use a back leg at the end of the run - it makes attaching the side toekick easier. For more, see Good to know.

5. Use the right screws and fittings

Drill holes at the spots you've marked. Be sure to use drill bits, screws and fittings that are appropriate for your wall material. If you have a plaster wall and there's no wall stud where you've drilled, insert a mooring screw before the screw and tighten halfway.

6. Install the corner cabinet

Lift the corner cabinet back into place and adjust the height of the legs so that it stands level. Use a spirit level to be sure.

7. Secure the cabinet to the wall

Tighten the screws, but not completely. Move the cabinet to level, front-to-back and side-to-side. Hint: If you plan to install a top section - do it now. It's much easier before the counter tops are in place.

8. Install the next base cabinet

Mark, drill, and insert the screws for the next cabinet. Lift the cabinet into place, carefully aligning it with the previous cabinet. Use a C-clamp to fasten the cabinets together temporarily.

9. Fasten cabinets together

Place the connection screws enclosed with the cabinet frames into the pre-drilled holes and tighten. Remove the C-clamp. Continue in this fashion with the remaining cabinets.

10. Install the high cabinet

The high cabinet should be installed the same way you installed the base cabinets. If you're using cover panels on the sides - follow the enclosed assembly instructions to mount them before installing the cabinet.

11. Tighten all the screws

When all base cabinets have been mounted and aligned, tighten all screws into the wall. Now the high cabinet is in place, make the final adjustments to the wall cabinets and tighten all the screws.

12. Measure filler pieces

Check the wall with your level to see if it is even and flat. If the wall is uneven, skip to picture 16. If the wall is even, measure the distance from the wall to the cabinet and mark this distance at the top and bottom of the filler piece.

13. Drill through the cabinet walls

For all doors except ULTRASKAL, use a 3/16" drill bit to drill through the fourth holes from the top and bottom edges. For ULTRASKAL, door, drill through the second holes from the top/bottom. When installing a drawer cabinet, drill through the fifth hole from the top.

14. Install filler pieces

Put the filler piece in place with the cut edge against the wall. Attach by drilling a screw through the predrilled holes from the inside of the cabinet. To be sure the filler piece stays in place, first fasten a strip to the wall. Install other filler pieces in the same way. When all filler pieces are in place, go to 17.

15. Uneven walls

If the wall is not level and flat, the filler must be cut to conform to the wall's shape. To do this, you'll need to make a template for tracing the wall's shape onto the filler. A piece of thin plywood or heavy cardboard makes a suitable template. You'll also need a measuring tape, pencil and compass. Cut the template material so that it's the same height as the cabinet. Hold it in place where the filler will be installed. Open the compass a couple of inches and place the point against the wall. Holding the compass horizontal and level, follow the line of the wall so that the pencil traces a clear line on the template. To cut the template to the correct width, measure the distance from the farthest point on the wall to the cabinet. Find the same point on the template and mark it. Draw a straight line from this point to the top and bottom of the template to form the flat edge that will fit against the cabinet. Cut the template and check that it fits, then trace the shape onto the filler and follow the cutting directions in picture 14.

16. The finishing touch

To produce an airtight seal between the wall and the cabinet, you'll need to caulk around the filler piece. Choose a well-made latex-caulk brand (it doesn't need to be waterproof). Tape alongside the area to be caulked. Apply a bead of caulk into the crevice. Push your finger into a 3-in-1 oil to prevent the caulk from sticking, then run your finger along the caulk, forcing it into the crevice. Remove the tape for an airtight seal and a straight edge.

Now's completed Step 4!

And the cabinet frames are in place.
