Why is KS3 Mathematics homework difficult?

KS3 Mathematics homework can be difficult for several reasons. Firstly, the concepts covered in this level are more complex and require a deeper understanding of the subject. This can be overwhelming for students who are still developing their mathematical skills.

Secondly, the homework questions are designed to challenge students and test their understanding of the topic. This can be a source of frustration for students who are not confident in their abilities.

Lastly, students may struggle with time management and find it difficult to complete their homework within the given deadline. This can lead to incomplete or rushed work, resulting in lower grades.
